DESCRIPTION: The UCLA Student Run Homeless Family Clinics are managed and staffed by UCLA students with volunteer faculty supervision. Working with the faculty, Student Chiefs oversee clinic sessions and evening seminars, manage the clinic schedule, patient flow, medical records, and medical formulary and supplies and provide teaching and mentoring to the junior students. Student Chiefs thus have the opportunity to hone their leadership and teaching skills while obtaining practical training in practice management. Each Student Chief has primary responsibility for at least one of the major administrative functions of the clinic or its programs, which include educational innovation and community outreach.

COURSE OBJECTIVES (in order of importance)
Student Chiefs will:

1. Have the opportunity to manage a free clinic, including: planning clinic budget and purchases, managing patient records, medication stocks, clinic schedule and personnel, patient flow, child immunization program, and coordination of the health care team under the supervision of attending faculty.
2. Become familiar with the unique challenges of providing health care to an underserved population.
3. Gain insight into the role of patient advocacy, leadership, and teaching in one’s career as a physician.
4. Demonstrate skill and cognitive proficiency in the management of common medical problems and preventative health needs of underserved populations.
5. Have the opportunity to practice medical “precepting” and teaching in the clinical environment.

DESCRIPTION:
The externship is designed to be flexible to meet the educational goals of the student desiring exposure to the broad spectrum nature of family medicine. The student may choose from among specific areas of training, working directly with our family medicine residents and faculty in the hospital and outpatient clinics. Inpatient Medicine-Pediatrics, Surgery, Intensive Care, Outpatient Pediatrics, Ob-Gyn and Emergency Medicine are all options that may be combined in 1, 2 or 3 week blocks during the rotation. Schedule will vary according to the service that is chosen. This is an excellent opportunity to learn in a county hospital with a wonderfully diverse patient population in a student friendly environment.
